Democratic Control Of Council Assured

CHICAGO, April 7.—(AP)— The democratic boom swept clean in the city council today.
It gave Anton J. Cermak, mayor-elect, a majority group of councilmen and took the last vestige of control from William Hale Thompson.

Incomplete returns indicated the ratio would be 26 or more democratic aldermen to 24 or fewer republicans. The present democratic representation in the council is 17 against 33 republicans.

CHICAGO, April 7.—(AP)—Anton J. Cermak was elected mayor of Chicago today, bringing to an end the rule of William Hale Thompson.

The son of a Bohemian immigrant miner topped "Big Bill" from the executive chair he had occupied through three spectacular terms, achieving his defeat by the largest majority ever accorded a candidate for the office.

The final unofficial tabulation of votes gave Cermak, the democrat, 607,529; Thompson, republican, 475, 613; a majority of 131,916.

Only five wards stood by the mayor in his downfall—among them the negro wards and the notorious "bloody Twentieth," ballfield of his staunch ally, Morris Eller. Even the first ward, embracing the downtown loop, deserted him. In choosing Cermak his leader for the world's fair term, Chicago closed a stirring chapter of American political life.

"Has Not Finished."
From his lofty seat at the head of America's second largest municipality, "Big Bill" attracted to himself and his city international attention. "Big Bill the Builder" became a byword, thrust into the news from day to day by his slight to Marshall Joffe and his war-time mission to America, his threat to "bust King George on the spot," his America first foundation and his crusades for waterways and flood relief in the Mississippi valley.

He had said a few days ago that this was his last campaign. But tonight, acknowledging defeat, Mayor Thompson served notice that his tasks were not finished.
"I will redouble my efforts for the city," he said.

Gasoline Price Cut 2 Cents by Standard

A two-cent-a-gallon reduction in the retail price of its gasoline was announced late Tuesday afternoon by the Standard Oil Company. The lower prices will be effective in the Atlanta territory beginning today, it was said.

Ordinary fuel gasoline will retail at 18 cents a gallon under the new price. Standard officials said, while other brands will sell for 21 cents.
No reason for the reduction was given, and no other local fuel concern announced reductions.

"Paying Guests"

Almost every home in Atlanta has a spare room nicely furnished for the use of "paying guests," better known as roomers. The surest way to locate a "paying guest" is through the use of Constitution want ads.
Wide coverage in circulation gives you the choice of selecting people to live with you. Just call Walnut 6565—and after you have placed your ad—say,
"charge it" and bill will be

NEW ANNEXATION PLAN IS OFFERED PARTY CHIEFTAINS REPLY TO RASKOB

Barnwell To Urge Inclu- sion of All Greater At- lanta Area Within Lim- its.

Extension of the limits of the borough of Atlanta so as to include all suburban territory contained in Atlanta, with its half a dozen boroughs and fifteen unincorporated districts, will be sought by Councilman Claude L. Barnwell, of the sixth ward, he announced Tuesday following action of council Monday in referring to the charter revision committee a proposed annexation plan.

Mr. Barnwell's proposal would make the Atlanta borough the sixth largest city in the entire country according to area, establish a municipality of 173,209 square miles and give it a population of 368,696, according to the 1930 federal census.

At the present time the borough has 34,12 square miles of territory and 270,386 inhabitants.
In commenting on the proposal, Mr.
Barnwell, who is chairman of the tax committee of the borough of Atlanta, declared he believes that all suburban territory should be within the corporate limits of the borough of Atlanta and that under such a plan the burden of government would be greatly reduced and at the same time a more efficient system set up.

He was joined in his contention that thickly settled suburban territory should be included into the borough limits by Councilman Joseph E. Berman, of the fourth ward.

If the Barnwell plan is approved by council and the mayor and then approved by Georgia legislature and the governor, the boroughs of Atlanta, Deatur, Avondale Estates, College Park, Hapeville and East Point and the large unincorporated territory which was set up by the 1929 Georgia constitution would be included.

Immigrant Boy Realizes Desire By Becoming Mayor of Windy City

BY RICHARD HIPPLEHEUSER.
CHICAGO, April 7.—(AP)—An immigrant boy tonight realized his greatest desire—to be mayor of America's second largest city.

Anton J. Cermak, self-styled "champion of personal liberty" and undisputed commander of Cook county democrats, swept aside the fourth term aspirations of William Hale Thompson by the greatest mayoral majority in history. "Dearborn's majority," as it was called, was a saga created in Bohemian hills and reaching to a door labeled: "1933 world's fair—office of the mayor of Chicago."

The name of the mayor-elect is pronounced "Sur-Mack."

Anton J. Cermak set one of his audiences right on the point just as the mayoralty campaign closed.

"Some of my opponents are pronouncing my name 'Chair-Mock,' but the correct way is to pronounce it just as it looks."

ANDERSON SCORES FREIGHT RATE HIKE ON COTTON GOODS

South Cannot Compete With East If Increase Is Effective, Manufacturer Tells Association.

Cotton textile mills in the southeast, particularly in Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi, will be unable to continue in competition with the mills of New England in the principal consuming markets, and further developments of the south's textile industry will be completely stopped, if the increase of 25 per cent in the freight rates on cotton factory products proposed by the railroads, is permitted to become effective, according to an address by W. D. Anderson, Sr., of Macon, Tuesday night at the opening meeting of the annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia in session at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel.

Mr. Anderson, who is president of the Bibb Manufacturing Company, is chairman of the joint traffic committee representing the cotton mills of Georgia and Alabama and the fight to prevent this increase in freight rates is being made under his direction.

"These proposed increases in our freight rates, which will become effective June 9, 1931, unless suspended by the interstate commerce commission, are presumably the result of a movement initiated by the railroads of New England and inspired by certain interests in that section in an effort to destroy the south's rightful supremacy in cotton textile manufacturing," said Mr. Anderson.

Burden of $250,000.

"The burden of these increased rates, amounting to approximately $250,000 annually will fall most heavily on the mills of Georgia and Alabama, most of whose goods are shipped into the territory around Chicago, Detroit and Akron, because of the new rates to that territory from the south will be on a much higher level than the rates from New England mills to those markets, though the distance from the south is less."

"Up until a few months ago the mills and railroads of the south were able to resist the repeated efforts that the northern and eastern railroads have made during the past 10 years to force the southern railroads to raise their rates, and becoming impatient they have suddenly brought to the cotton factory products shipped from New England mills to the important consuming territory north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, these new rates being much lower than the level of the rates from the south to that territory."

"Then, by a strategic move on the part of the New England interests, the matter was suddenly brought to the attention of the interstate commerce commission at a hearing in December, 1930, the result of which was an order issued on January 17, 1931, by the commission requiring the southern railroads to abolish all 'commodity' rates on cotton factory products shipped from the southeast to the middle west, the north and the east, because these 'commodity' rates involved certain technical violations of the long and short haul section of the interstate commerce act, though these same violations have been in existence for more than 20 years. The commission further ordered the southern

Memorial Tablet Unveiled To First Georgia Newspaper

Richard M. Charlton and Julian Harris Speakers at Savannah Ceremonies Commemorating Georgia Gazette.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 7.—(AP)— A memorial tablet commemorating the founding here on April 7, 1783, of the Georgia Gazette, first newspaper published in Georgia, was unveiled here Tuesday at a ceremony featured by addresses of two Georgia journalists.
The speakers were Julian Harris, of the Atlanta Constitution, and Richard M. Charlton, city editor of the Savannah Morning News. Harris compared newspapers of yesterday and today, the press of the past century lacking the "breadth of vision and the courage of conviction that invigorated the minds and sharpened the pens of earlier editors."

"The newspaper is the chronic bedfellow of the prosperity of the community," he said. "It rises or falls with the expansion or the shrinkage of the city. It grows materially with the progress of the state, and feels the impress of its greatness and suffers from its sluggishness." He said in the earlier days news frequently reached the reader a few months late but then, as now, politics, legal claims, murders, ship disasters, and the like,
made up the news of the day.

The marker was unveiled on the site of the old Georgia Gazette, now

NEW EARTHQUAKE SHAKES MANAGUA

Remaining Buildings Crumble in Tremor; No Other Damage.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 7.— (AP)—Another earthquake of moderate intensity struck Managua today, sending badly weakened walls tumbling into the ruins left by the catastrophe which came just a week ago today.

The material damage was relatively slight, for there is not much left of Managua. The people, still staggering under last week's heavy blow, were badly frightened, but there was no panic.

Fulton county voters who live outside of the incorporated limits of the borough of Atlanta will vote on Saturday, May 23, on the questions of issuing $500,000 of county school bonds and restoring a two-and-a-half mill special school tax.

The bond election was called by the county school board and the tax election was called by Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries on the presentation of petitions bearing more than the required number of signatures of voters.

The polls will be open from 7 o'clock in the morning until 7 o'clock at night for the bond election, in all precincts. In the tax election the polls in unincorporated districts will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and in College Park, Hapeville and East Point from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. Registration will close Saturday and Tax Collector W. S. Richardson has agreed to keep his office open until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon for registrations.

The two-and-a-half mill special school tax is needed to take the place of a similar tax recently held unconstitutional by the state supreme court, and the bond issue is needed for the county school building program, according to Superintendent Jere A. Wells.

Mrs. Camp To Succeed Husband As Sheriff of Campbell County

FAIRBURN, Ga., April 7.—Mrs.
Lula Camp will be sworn in as sheriff of Campbell county tomorrow morning at the office of Ordinary W.
S. McLarin here.

Mrs. Camp succeeds her husband, Charles W. Camp, who served as sheriff for many years. He was killed last Friday morning by a negro, who shot the officer with his own gun during a scuffle near the courthouse. Sheriff Camp was trying to place the man under arrest.
An 18-year-old negro, Fred Griffin, was captured later in the day and held on a charge of murder when the sheriff's gun was found in his possession.

Mrs. Camp will be appointed to fill her husband's position by Ordinary McLarin. She will continue to live at the jail, but is not expected to take an active part in the more strenuous details of a sheriff's duties.
She will probably devote her time to the bookkeeping and jail administration portions of the work.

P. C. Rivers, coroner, who has been acting sheriff since the death of Sheriff Camp, will, it is understood, resign as coroner tomorrow and accept a position as deputy sheriff.

It is expected that the election to choose a new sheriff will be held on May 13.

INJURY TO BRAIN CAUSED WHEN CAR STOPS ABRUPTLY

New Chauffeur Applies Brakes Suddenly and Mrs. Davis Is Pitched Violently Forward; Mrs.
Orme Slightly Injured.

TWO WOMEN ON WAY TO UNVEILING RITES

Mishap Occurred Near Danville on Savannah
Highway; Mrs. Davis
Prominent in Club Field

Mrs. Archibald H. Davis, of 1400 Peachtree street, prominent Atlanta woman and widely known for her activity in church and civic endeavors, died suddenly Tuesday afternoon after an unusual automobile accident on the highway near Danville, Ga.

Pitched forward suddenly when the chauffeur abruptly stopped the car in which she and a friend, Mrs. J. T.
Orme, also widely known in Atlanta, were en route to Savannah, Mrs.
Davis apparently sustained a hemorrhage of the brain, according to advices from Dublin late Tuesday. She died before she could be taken to a hospital.

Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Orme had left Atlanta early Tuesday in the former's sedan for Savannah, to attend the unveiling of a tablet marking the site of Georgia's first newspaper, The Georgia Gazette, printed in 1783. A member of the Georgia Colonial Dames, under whose auspices the ceremonies took place, Mrs. Davis had only the day previously engaged a new chauffeur, George Brinson, negro, to drive the car to Savannah.

Brakes Applied Suddenly.
According to telegraphic advices from Dublin, the chauffeur suddenly discovered that the car was about to come in contact with some wires swinging low on the right side of the road. There also was a telephone pole down and lying partly across the road, Brinson told county officers.
He swung the car sharply to the left and applied the brakes at the same time, the machine falling into a shallow ditch at the side of the road and coming to an abrupt halt.

"I got out of the car, and so did Mrs. Davis," said the chauffeur. Mrs.
Davis asked me, 'What happened?'
I told her that I was trying to dodge the telephone pole."

The chauffeur then said Mrs. Davis asked for a glass of water. He ran to a farm house and got the water, according to the chauffeur, but when he returned Mrs. Davis had collapsed in what he believed to be a faint, her head resting in the lap of Mrs. Orme.

The car, which was not damaged, was driven hurriedly to Dublin, and just as it stopped in front of the Dublin clinic, doctors pronounced Mrs.
Davis dead. Arrangements were made Tuesday night to bring the body back to Atlanta immediately.

Mrs. Orme sustained a slight head injury. She declined to be interviewed, but told those who offered her aid that she was waiting for relatives from Atlanta.

PORTUGAL LAUNCHES NEW FIGHT ON REBELS

Bloodless Revolt Sought by Government as 600 Troops Sail for Funchal.

LISBON, Portugal, April 7.—(P)—Determined to avoid bloodshed if possible in putting down a military revolt at Funchal, Madeira, the government nevertheless today continued its preparations to recover the island capital by force if that should prove necessary.

The transport Pedro Gomez with 600 troops sailed this morning after having been delayed several hours by mechanical difficulties. The gunboat Zaire conveyed her. Tomorrow the transport Jubango will leave with four seaplanes and a regiment of artillery, and on Thursday the transport Lima will sail for Funchal.

Before the Pedro Gomez sailed President Carmona went aboard and exhorted the soldiers to do their utmost for the national honor.

It was understood that the air-planes would fly over Funchal before the troops landed and that an effort would be made to persuade the rebels to surrender.

Today the government issued an official denial of reports that the revolt had extended to the Azores, but strict censorship was still imposed on messages to and from Funchal.

ADVERTISING AGENCY MERGER ANNOUNCED

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 7.—(Special).—Formation of the Southeastern Advertising Agency, Inc., a merger between Frantz-Advertising, nationally operating agency with headquarters in Jacksonville, and the Bennett Williams Company, Inc., of High Point, N. C., was announced here today.

The new organization combines the handling of 40 accounts for southern territorial and national advertisers. The announcement said that the personnel will remain unchanged and that plans are under way for the agency to expand its service.

FRANCE WILL RUN FOR PRESIDENT

BALTIMORE, Md., April 7.—(P)—Former Senator Joseph I. France announced tonight that he was an anti-prohibition candidate for the republican nomination for president in opposition to President Hoover.

Dr. France, senator from Maryland from 1917 to 1923, said he would file formal notice of candidacy tomorrow with the secretary of state at Annapolis and would enter primaries in other states.

He said in a statement that he favored the repeal of the eighteenth amendment; substitution of the concept of nations proposal he advanced when in the senate, for the League of Nations, and that he opposed extension of government ownership and the recognition of Russia in advance of mutually satisfactory settlements of all moral and financial questions.

"RESTLESSNESS" HIT BY PRESBYTERIANS

The committee on plans for changing pastorate of the Southern Presbyterian church will send a majority report to the seventy-first general assembly, to be held in Nashville, Tenn., in May in which it will say "restlessness" within the pastorate and the churches had produced "an intolerable state of affairs."

The majority report, released Tuesday, was signed by the Rev. S. L. Morris, of Atlanta; the Rev. A. G. Irons, of Birmingham, Ala.; and two ruling elders, E. D. Starnes, of Montgomery, Ala., and W. A. Watt, of Thomasville, Ga.

A minority report, differing with the majority on the way the situation is to be relieved, has been signed by the Rev. G. F. Bell, of Louisville, Kentucky.

AMELIA EARHART DELAYS ATTEMPT

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—(P)—Rain and fog today caused Amelia Earhart to postpone her altitude flight in an airplane from the field of the Pottstown (Pa.) Autogiro Company at Harbor near here.

PARTY LEADERS DENY AGREEMENT TO BOLT

Drys Will Try To Stop Wet Plank But Have No Other Plans.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(P)—The group of southern dries who oppose the Raskob home rule plan have not agreed to repudiate the party if the national chairman's program is approved at the next democratic national convention.

Senator Hull, democrat, Tennessee, was authority tonight for this statement. He, together with Senator Robinson, of Arkansas; Senator Swanson and former Governor Byrd, of Virginia, participated in meetings here recently after Chairman Raskob made his suggestions to the national committee.

It was agreed then that efforts would be made to prevent adoption of the chairman's program.

JUDGE WILL ORDER BEAUTY'S RELEASE

NICE, France, April 7.—(P)—Magistrate Achier said today that "Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, of St. Louis, Mo., will be temporarily released within five days on the charge of slaying her husband, Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger, Philadelphia theater owner.

The magistrate explained that Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger's trial would be held in the August term of court instead of the May term, as heretofore supposed, and that he was unwilling to confine her during the hot summer months. He refused to disclose the amount of bail he would require.

POLICEMEN GIVEN WERTZ REWARD

MIAMI, Fla., April 7.—(P)—Members of a searching party that found the body of Thomas H. Wertz, of New Orleans, Pa., today were in possession of their share of the reward of $5,000 offered by relatives for its recovery.

SHOUSE INVADERS G. O. P. TERRITORY

DES MOINES, April 7.—(P)—Formally opening the campaign to send a democrat to the White House in 1932, Chairman Shouse of the national executive committee invaded this morning the republican state tonight to attack the administration's handling of the farm problem and the business depression.

Speaking at a dinner under auspices of the Iowa democratic state committee, in the heart of the agricultural belt, Shouse said he believed the farmers could not be "duped" indefinitely by promises, the fulfillment of which was never intended.

He was ordered to Sing Sing for two and one-half to five years, but Judge Koenig delayed execution of the sentence for three days so the defense might investigate a mysterious situation which, it was hinted, might prove a sensation if found to be true. No information was obtainable concerning it.

Tait was convicted of perjury in connection with the arrest of Icie Sands, negro woman.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 7.—(P)—A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation, in an address before the South Bend Chamber of Commerce today, predicted that the automobile industry in this country would make 3,100,000 cars in 1931 and 4,000,000 in 1932, exclusive of exports.

FORMER U. S. OFFICIAL INDICTED FOR THEFT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 7.—(P)—Cullen H. Elliott, former United States trustee in bankruptcy here, was indicted by the federal grand jury today on a charge of embezzlement on thirteen counts growing out of cases in which he acted as trustee.

Elliott was removed as trustee in 24 cases here when court orders to make settlements brought no response. The indictments alleged embezzlement of $15,665.09.

Grand jury investigation today was the culmination of two years of investigation by department of justice agents. J. H. Harness, special investigator, presented his findings to the federal jurors today.

Elliott was removed last June. His successor, Winstead Johnson, reported to the district court Elliott was "chargeable" with more than $23,000 which was not accounted for.

SPRATLIN ELECTED
NEW ROTARY HEAD

Frank M. Spratlin, prominent civic leader and insurance executive, was elected president of the Atlanta Rotary at the annual election for 1931. Mr. Spratlin succeeds Charles Howard Candler in the office.

Featuring the program of the regular Tuesday meeting at the Capital City Club was a layman's description of electrical bombardments taking place in the front line trenches of science, presented by the field marshal of the General Electric research laboratories, Larry A. Hawkins.

Mr. Hawkins, executive engineer of the Schenectady plant, frequently spoken of as the "house of magic," made as little allusion to technical language as was possible in talking of electron tubes, cathode rays and high-frequency currents.

While the things related by Mr. Hawkins as being actually carried out in experiments at the Schenectady laboratories possessed all the qualities of black magic and were as awe-inspiring to the moderns as the Connecticut Yankee's tricks were to King Arthur's courtiers, the narration of an experiment with cathode rays seemed to promise a possibility of curing baldness attracted notable attention in certain sections of the Rotarian assembly.

Hair Grows on Rabbit.
Mr. Hawkins told of subjecting the ear of a rabbit to the rays with the result that a scab appeared and popped off, leaving pink flesh, which later produced hair several times the length of the original. Following the address Mr. Hawkins stated that when his experiment became known a bald-headed man of about 50 offered himself to be experimented upon. The company rejected the offer, he said, being not yet ready to loose the powerful cathode rays upon human experimental subjects.

Energy of Water.
Pointing to a tumbler of water on the table, Mr. Hawkins asserted, "If we can ever utilize the energy of the atoms of matter, and we now know that just that is responsible for the great energy given forth by the sun, this glass of water could be made to give forth enough energy to drive an ocean-going liner back and forth across the Atlantic several times." Mr. Hawkins was introduced by Tom W. Moore, of the Rotary Club, district executive of the General Electric Company in Atlanta.

In the election results announcement, officers named to serve the Atlanta Rotary Club for 1931-32 with President Spratlin were: George Marchmont, first vice president; George Winslow, second vice president; J. E. Mellett, secretary and treasurer; W. B. McBurney, sergeant-at-arms, and the following directors: Preston Arkwright, William D. Ellis, R. L. Foreman, Jr., Robert B. Troutman and James L. Wells.

Shepherd Dog Entries Attract Largest Galleries, Win Major Honors in First Day's Judging at Local Show

BY RALPH MCGILL.

Shepherd dogs, about whom so much romance was woven during the World War, attracted the largest gallery at the first day's judging in the Atlanta dog show Tuesday at the Palms Peachtree.

The show attracted large crowds all morning and afternoon, the "Pekes" starting off the morning with a hotly contested ring.

The shepherds came last, Tuesday night. A Charlotte (N. C.) dog, owned by J. M. Jones, won the major honors, winning best of breed and placing first in the open dog class.

A Memphis dog was first in winner's bitches, Eldred von Taubendrummer, owned by C. C. Cartwright, taking the blue ribbon.

Shepherds owned by an Atlantan, A. G. Laughridge, who has a famous kennel, won in limit dogs, taking first place, reserve and best local dog with Graf von Sonnebach.

Mrs. Oliver M. Healey, of Atlanta, started the city off on some fine victories in the show by winning the Pekingese ring. Fan Tan, Mrs. Healey's chief entry, won over a very strong field.

Schnauzer Winner.
In the Schnauzer class Miss Gladys Schofield, of Macon, won the best of breed honors with her dog, Tommie France.

Asta von Sonnebach, owned by Mrs. A. G. Laughridge, completed her championship by placing first in winner's bitches. Mrs. Laughridge's entry was the only one in the show to complete a championship.

Asta's blood line was prominent in the winnings, her puppy, Fan Tan, Sonnebach, being the best male puppy; Budweiser von Sonnebach winning the limit dog class, and Prize-ette von Sonnebach winning the blue ribbon in the puppy bitches class.

The Pomeranians, those pretty animated muffs, the airdale terriers, Cairn terriers, fox terriers, Scotch and Boston terriers, Sealyhams and Great Danes, were shown Tuesday.

Today's show will bring in other fine classes with some of the greatest dogs in the show to be judged.

The sportsmen will find today interesting. The pointers and setters will be shown and the state's finest together with some from outside the state will be shown. Spaniels, greyhounds, wolf heads, and a dozen more breeds will also be shown. And the night, of course, will bring on the grand judging for the best dog in the show.

The crowds were fine Tuesday and even greater ones are expected for the big rings tonight.

Judgings of Tuesday were as follows:

PEKINGES.
Puppy Dogs—First, Chu Chow Tchu O'P'ing, owned by Mrs. Paul Hamer, Bedford, Pa.; second, Sloah Dee, owned by Mrs. W. W. Anderson, Atlanta; third, Greenberg, Atlanta.

CITY MAY LIMIT
VIADUCT TRAFFIC

Steps looking toward barring street cars, large buses, vans and other heavy traffic from the Broad street viaduct Tuesday by Mayor James L. Key.

The mayor declared that while such drastic action is not contemplated at once, he feels that the borough must take cognizance of the bad condition of the bridge, and that unless some method of financing reconstruction of the structure is found within a reasonable lapse of time, the borough will be forced to take action to protect users of the bridge from possible fatal accident.

"We feel that the bridge is entirely safe for passenger cars and will be for many months to come," the mayor said, "but the heavier traffic places a big load on the structure each day. Unless we are able to arrange for rebuilding of the bridge as recommended by engineers, we must begin to consider safety measures, which may include barring of the heavier traffic."

Rebuilding of the bridge will cost $88,500, according to estimates of C. E. Kaufmann, borough bridge engineer.

Gains 7 Lbs., Strong Nerves

"I have been taking Ironized Yeast 6 weeks and notice a vast improvement in my appetite, nerves quiet so I sleep and rest 50% better. Have gained 7 lbs. and pimples and blackheads have disappeared."—Carle Locky, Los Angeles, Calif.

DAILY the letters pour in telling how new Ironized Yeast has added pounds of good solid flesh in few weeks. Has built up new strength and pep in nervous, tired people. Constipation, indigestion gone, skin cleared.

Why Ironized Yeast Builds Weight Quick
The new Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—special weight-building dried brewer's Yeast, and blood-enriching, strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value, making it richer than plain yeast in those vitamins which revitalize sluggish body cells, drive out dangerous poisons, tonic nerves, increase energy and endurance, and build up weight and strength. Double-tested for strength, purity and potency. Used by doctors and big hospitals.

To this concentrated dried brewer's Yeast is added three kinds of easily assimilated iron to quickly make rich, red blood and tone up nerves and muscles. By this special process Ironized Yeast is made more effective than yeast or iron taken separately. Contains no starches, flours or gas-forming fillers.

Prohibition Shows Profit, Women's Dry Group Says

Committee Offers Audit To Show Financial Success; Prepared in Washington.

BALTIMORE, April 7.—(AP)—Ten years of prohibition were audited today by the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement and profits found greater than losses.

based their attack on what they saw as decreased income to the government and similar economic declines. The audit, prepared from numerous official sources, was discussed by Mrs. Arthur Hedstrom, of Buffalo, N. Y., before a gathering of Baltimore clubwomen, Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Orlando, Fla., chairman of the committee, said in Washington the "profit and loss account" was prepared "to remove the impression that the eighteenth amendment has decreased in any way the income to the government."

In its recapitulation, the study quoted the Wickersham commission report to show a total gain of: "Increased production, increased efficiency of labor, the elimination of blue Mondays, decrease in industrial accidents, increase in savings, and decreased demands on charities and social agencies."

The accounting, which was headed, "People of the United States in Account With Prohibition, Inc.," showed losses as:

One hundred and seventy thousand saloons; $363,000,000 in federal income from taxes on $1,817,000,000 worth of liquor; 64 per cent decrease of liquor formerly drunk; 38 out of 50 "Keeley" cures and 60 out of 60 "Neal" cures closed; 10 to 60 per cent reduction in juvenile court cases; 54 per cent drop in number of children cared for by welfare associations; 50 per cent decrease in prostitution and 11 per cent drop in number of 18 to 20-year-old boys sent to penal institutions.

Listed as gains were:

Two billion dollars in federal income taxes; $779,000,000 in automobile and gasoline taxes; 380,000 gasoline stations and 3,615 branch banks;

28 per cent increase in milk consumption; 30,000,000 new savings bank depositors; $65,000,000,000 more life insurance holdings; 400,000 new homes a year since 1921; 47 per cent more hotels, average wage increase of 25 per cent; 15 per cent rise in high school students; 30 per cent reduction in infant mortality; 300 per cent increase in college students.

The statement said:

"We do not claim that the gains of the last 10 years are due to prohibition alone, but acknowledge gladly other agencies which have contributed to these gains. What we wish to call your attention to is that there are gains."

Tremor Recorded.

SOCORRO, N. M., April 7.—(AP)—A slight earth shock lasting four or five seconds was felt here at 2:25 a. m. (M. S. T.) today. No damage was done.

WITNESS BLAMES LEA FOR HIGH ROAD COST

Former Commissioner Says Banker Favored "Limited Group."

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 7.—(AP)—A state highway commissioner who lost his job told the state affairs investigators today that he had refused Colonel Luke Lea's request to specify rock asphalt without competition with other road materials.

There was only a "limited group" of rock asphalt producers, Neil Bass, the former commissioner, testified, and in this group was the Kentucky Rock Asphalt Company, in which Rogers Caldwell was interested.

"Did you not know that Colonel Lea was deeply interested in the same matters that Rogers Caldwell was?" inquired Chairman Walter Faulkner, and the witness replied affirmatively.

Harry S. Berry, who succeeded him, Bass testified, did specify rock asphalt without competition and it is still being specified. Bass estimated that as a result the cost of road materials had been around $1,000,000 in excess of what it would have been otherwise.

Killed in Crash.

SAN ANTONIO, April 7.—(AP)—Lieutenant Roy H. Guerrier, 25, was injured fatally today when an army plane in which he was flying with another Kelly field student, Lieutenant Harold Q. Huglin, 25, crashed from a low altitude. Lieutenant Huglin was only slightly injured.

PRESIDENT FAVORS HIGH PRESERVES DUTY

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—President Hoover today returned to the tariff commission without his approval the recommendation for lower duties on cherries, sulphured or in brine, and tomatoes, prepared or preserved in any way.

In a letter to Chairman Fletcher, of the commission, the president said the recommendation "was of necessity based upon conditions obtaining before the emergency created by the drought and in some cases upon data over a period of so short experience as to make it desirable that the commission be afforded more time."

"I should like it, therefore," he added, "if the commission would undertake to review the facts upon the basis of the forthcoming crops and make another report."

ENGINEER IS BLAMED FOR PLUNGE OF TRAIN

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The plunge that the Louisville & Nashville fast train "Pan-American" took through a draw-bridge near Hot Springs, Ala., on February 25, was due to failure of the engineer to observe signals, the safety division of the interstate commerce commission held today.

The engineer, fireman and a baggage master were drowned.

The investigator reported brake on the train were in good condition and signal lights working properly and that it was evident the engineer did not heed a stop signal.

POLICEMEN FACE HOMICIDE CHARGE

R. R. Davis and Odus Hewell Defendants in Fulton Court Today.

Two Atlanta policemen Tuesday faced juries in Fulton superior court in cases involving homicides.

In Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy's division, R. R. Davis went on trial for involuntary manslaughter in the death of J. S. White, and in Judge W. E. H. Searcy's court Odus Hewell faced a murder charge growing out of the slaying of Jake Minsk, butcher.

Hewell's case is expected to take at least two more days, but argument in Davis' trial will be concluded this morning.

Hewell shot Minsk at the latter's Decatur street butcher shop last August, while answering a call to the shop, it is charged. Witnesses heard Tuesday included A. L. Handy, an alleged eyewitness, and Assistant Solicitor-General Ed A. Stephens, who testified as to the finding of a bullet in the store. Hewell's previous appearance in court on the murder charge resulted in a mistrial.

White was killed while riding a motorcycle at Forrest avenue and Butler street, when he collided with an automobile driven by Davis, it was alleged. The accident happened in January of last year.

KING'S CONDITION REPORTED BETTER

WINDSOR, England, April 7.—(AP)—Alarmed by an official statement that King George was suffering from sub-acute bronchitis, the public was relieved somewhat tonight by published opinions from medical authorities to the effect that his illness commonly is called a cold in the chest.

Meanwhile, the king continued to show slow progress, remaining in his apartments and perusing state papers. Physicians attending him theorized

WEIGHED ONLY 90 POUNDS; GAINS 16 TAKING SARGON

"It's Amazing How It Ended My Troubles," Says Atlanta Woman.

"Since taking Sargon my weight has increased from 90 to 106 pounds—a gain of 16 pounds—but the most wonderful part is the new strength and energy it brought me," said Mrs. J. H. Landers, 230 Sunset Ave., Atlanta.

"I could feel myself getting weaker and going down hill every day. The little I ate always caused indigestion, and smothering spells frightened me nearly to death. Attacks of headaches sometimes lasted all day and night. My skin turned right yellow."

"It's amazing the way Sargon ended my troubles. I enjoy every meal now without indigestion, and how thankful I am to be free of those awful headaches. My housework is a pleasure now."

"I also took Sargon Soft Mass Pills, and they keep my bowels regulated perfectly. My husband, mother and son are also taking Sargon, and they praise it as much as I do."

Jack Walton Loses Oklahoma City Race

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 7. (AP)—J. C. Walton, who was impeached as governor of Oklahoma in 1923, lost his bid for the mayoralty of this capital city today on the face of an unofficial plurality of 9,068 votes gives his opponent, C. J. Blinn, attorney. It was a non-partisan campaign. Both men are democrats.

The unofficial returns gave Blinn 25,375 votes to Walton's 16,307. The total vote cast in the mayor's race was 41,682, the largest ever cast in a city election here.

A complete ticket of anti-administration councilmen was swept into office with Blinn.

4 Daylight Bandits Rob Grocery of $86

Four white bandits operating from a car bearing an out-of-state license Tuesday afternoon staged a bold daylight robbery of a Rogers grocery at 1435 Piedmont avenue, escaping with $86, according to police reports. Two of the bandits entered the store, while one remained in front as a lookout and the fourth stayed behind the wheel of a light sedan, the motor of which was kept running.

W. O. Morgan, manager of the store, a clerk and D. G. Harwell, of 240 Westminster drive, a customer, were held at the point of a pistol in the hands of one bandit while the other rifled the cash register. Witnesses gave good descriptions of the car and its occupants to police.

NORMAN IS CALLER AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Two distinguished men talked about the weather long enough today to delay the president's cabinet meeting.

After a 15-minute visit with President Hoover, Governor Montagu Norman, of the Bank of England, said:

"We talked about this blizzard. Can you imagine talking about anything else?"

Asked if he had any plans for lunching with government officials he replied:

"I certainly hope I'm going to lunch somewhere because I had very little breakfast."

Governor Norman was accompanied to the White House by Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador. He stood for a moment in the rain and snow while photographers made his picture.

FOUR FARM GROUPS WITHOUT GUIDES

CHICAGO, April 7.—(AP)—Four powerful farm groups were without direct representation tonight in the management of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation.

Action of the stockholders today in cutting the directorate from 19 to 15 members took away direct voting representation of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange, the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union and the Farmers' Equity Union.

NEW GRADY CHIEF IS STILL UNKNOWN

Selection of a new superintendent for Grady hospital is still in the negotiations stage, Sam C. Dobbs, chairman of the board of trustees, announced Tuesday night following a three-hour session of the board.

Mr. Dobbs said that the meeting adjourned subject to his call, and that he will call another session as soon as the committee in charge of negotiations for a superintendent is ready to report. Three men are under consideration for the post to succeed Steve R. Johnston, who leaves the city's service July 1 after 13 years as superintendent of Grady.

BRIAND TO ATTEND PARLEY IN LONDON

PARIS, April 7.—(AP)—Aristide Briand will attend the conference of European statesmen called by Foreign Minister Henderson to meet in London, it was admitted in official circles today. The conference probably will be held early in May.

Foreign Minister Grandi will probably represent Italy. The parley, it was believed here, will tackle such problems as the Austro-German economic accord and the disarmament question.

U. S. WILL DEPORT ALIEN JOBBOLDERS

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The labor department is running special trains across the continent in its effort to rid the United States of aliens illegally here.

A campaign against these aliens has been under way several months. Since mid-January it has centered to a large extent in New York city and Los Angeles.

C. OF C. WILL SEEK REVISION OF TAXES

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Action looking toward relieving American citizens of international double taxation was urged today by the federal taxation committee of the United States chamber of commerce.

A special report said citizens of this country engaged in business abroad were subjected to extra burden by having to pay taxes to the United States and the nation in which the operations were conducted.

PETERSON IS SEEN AS HEAD OF PROBE

Representative Issues
Call for Reorganization Committee Meeting.

General expectation that Representative Gus Huddleston, who introduced the resolution passed unanimously in the house, would be named chairman of the legislative committee to conduct the reorganization inquiry of state departments, was jarred Tuesday when it became known that Representative Hugh Peterson had issued the call for the organization meeting to be held at the capitol at 10 o'clock Monday.

In announcing the personnel of the special committee, charged with a sweeping probe of the state government, Governor-elect Russell named Representative Peterson first on the list but did not designate him as chairman.

Asked about the status of the chairmanship, Peterson, from his home at Ayley, said Tuesday night that he assumed he would serve as head of the committee. Friends at the capitol Tuesday pointed out that he is the only member who will sit in the next senate and that upper house dignity dictated his selection.

Huddleston, at the capitol Tuesday, had little to say about the matter. State Auditor Tom Wisdom, who is to serve with the committee in an advisory capacity, was even more silent on the subject of the chairmanship or the plans of the committee.

Peterson said that the committee planned "nothing spectacular," but would discuss, in a preliminary way, what form its inquiry will take.

Other members of the committee are Representatives W. J. Crowe, of Worth; J. T. Colson, of Glynn, and R. B. Edwards, of Lowndes.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 7.—(AP)—Governor Roosevelt will travel to the far ends of this state and into the south and midwest during the spring and summer.

The governor said tonight he had made no unbreakable dates for the next few months, but that he tentatively planned to make at least half a dozen trips.

His first engagement, the most definite, will be with himself at his Warm Springs (Ga.) home. Going to that resort about May 1, he plans to rest for whatever time business will allow, possibly two weeks.

5-passenger

coupe

A great number of men and women, today, want a distinctly personal type of enclosed car that accommodates five passengers. For these, Chevrolet now presents a new de luxe sport model—the Chevrolet 5-passenger coupe.

A glance at this new coupe will tell you that here is something quite different in low-cost transportation. Fisher artistry and skill find smart expression in its trim, modish lines. The modern sport treatment is especially evident in the striking color contrasts on body and wire wheels, the large amount of chrome-plating, and the rakish contour of the rear.

The close-coupled interior has the same practical seating arrangement used in the conventional 2-door sedan, thus affording abundant room for all passengers. And along with de luxe wire wheels, this model offers many other de luxe features including package compartment, rich broadcloth upholstery, assist cord, ash tray, arm rests and unusually attractive Tarnstedt interiorware.

Make it a special point to come in and see this fashionable new sport model. It has poise. It has distinction. It has all the easy-riding and handling, the dependability and six-cylinder performance for which Chevrolet cars are so well known. Yet one of its leading attractions is an extremely low price of $595, f. o. b. Flint, Michigan.

NO DISCRIMINATORY RATES.

A remarkable effort to force discriminatory rates upon the textile mills of the south is revealed in the news reports in this issue of the address in Atlanta last night of W.
D. Anderson, Sr., president of the Bibb Manufacturing Company, before the annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia.

The new rates call for an increase of 25 per cent to points north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers and would follow shortly after decreases granted by eastern railroads, leaving a situation so unfair—should the plan go through—as to put a stop to textile development in this section.

It is apparent that the move for these discriminatory rates originated with the mills of New England, hoping thereby to put the southern textile mills at a disadvantage.

The first step was to secure reduced rates on the eastern roads, then the new rate schedule was agreed upon by both the New England and the southern lines, and the hike will stand if approved by the interstate commerce commission.

The trap was baited with prospects of increased revenues to the railroads of this section by reason of the fact that they have the longer haul.

The southern mills lost no time in launching a bitter war on the new rates, and as a result of many conferences between southern and eastern mills, an agreement has been reached which has already been accepted in principle by the eastern railroads.

The only thing that remains now for the matter to be finally disposed of is for the railroads of the south to accept the agreement as the railroads of the east have done.

The question comes up before the interstate commerce commission at an early date, and since it is inconceivable that the trunk lines of this section will withhold their acceptance of the compromise rates, it is to be hoped that they will make known their decision without delay.

Any effort to put our mills at an unfair disadvantage should be fought by every business interest in the south because our whole commercial fabric is either directly or indirectly affected by the prosperity of the cotton industry.

Least of all should the railroads of this section insist upon discriminatory rates against southern mills.
It is gratifying that this serious threat at the south's major industry seems to have been brought off as the result of agreements reached between the interests involved, and which will be submitted to the interstate commerce commission for promulgation in orders in the near future.

WESLEYAN'S NEW HEAD.

The selection of Dr. Dice Robins
Anderson, president of Randolph Macon College for Women, in Virginia, to be the next president of Wesleyan Female College at Macon, is an event for warm congratulations from Georgians and from national educators generally.

Wesleyan wears the distinction of being the first regularly chartered college for the higher education of women, on a parity with the institutions of classic curriculum for men.
As the pioneer in the world for the equal rights of women in education, Wesleyan has lived and prospered, and stands today, not so rich and not so lavishly equipped as many younger sisters, but with a crown of glory won by faithful service and peerless fruitfulness.

The coming to it of Dr. Anderson brings into its service a man eminent in his profession of college teacher and administrator. His career in many educational fields and cultural enterprises has not only endowed him with rare experience, wisdom and adeptness, but has given him conspicuous rank among the educational experts of the nation.

Wesleyan is now in an era of expansion which promises to make it more effective than in all of its effulgent past in nurturing and promoting the culture of southern women.
Under the wise and able presidency of Dr. Anderson it may be expected to continue to add more brilliantly to its roster of women alumnae who have shone as jewels in the social, literary and art circles of the south and the nation. The Constitution adds its sincere congratulations to those that will come from the whole south to both Wesleyan and Dr.
Anderson.

POLITICS OR PROTECTION.

Once again at Monday's meeting of council, the police department of Atlanta was dragged into the maelstrom of councilmanic politics, in which it has wallowed intermittently for the past third of a century or more.

So long as the department is used as a football in heated wrangles on the floor of council, during which all manner of charges damaging to the morale of the force are flung about, there can be no rightful expectation of efficient policing of the city.

The department should be run on a basis as strict as that of a military organization, and the chief should be as supreme in its conduct as a major general in the army is in the command of his corps area.

The chief, whoever he might be, should be chief in fact as well as in name. He should know that so long as the department functions efficiently, he will remain at its head, but that the penalty of lack of efficiency would be the loss of his job.

The department should be absolutely freed from the political interference and complications which have kept it in a constantly unsettled condition for all these years.

The best way to improve the city's policing is to absolutely disentangle the department from the whims and vicissitudes of councilmanic politics.

Efficiency cannot be expected of a police force with a half dozen or so masters.

The Constitution has no criticism of the motives actuating those councilmen who think they know how to run the police department, and who, all too often, use the department as a football to be kicked freely around to its own discomfort and demoralization.

Council should have nothing to do with the administration of the police department.

Just as long as it does, the political maneuvering of the past three decades will continue.

CHICAGO VINDICATES HERSELF.

The people of Chicago have at last gathered their self-respect and courage in hand and smitten through the ballot-box the arrogant and spectacular demagogue who, through three terms in the mayoralty, has made their municipal character the gazing-stock of civilization.

Our democratic system offers many opportunities for the brazen, the blatant and the ambitious politician to hypnotize a public and ride it for his own egotistic glory.
Thompson was pastmaster in the art of demagogic appeal.

The country at large has long marveled that the second city of a great and intelligent nation could prefer and endure the leadership of so artful a demagogue as "Big Bill" Thompson.

The election of Anton J. Cermak, head of the county judiciary and democracy, promises a better and cleaner political administration of Chicago. In 1933 there is to be another great exposition in the city to celebrate its centenary. Doubtless, in view of that fact, the better citizenry has awakened to the need of having a chief magistrate with a more dignified and representative sense of the city's reputation for patriotism, culture and decency of public conduct.

Chicago will be generally congratulated upon the promised regeneration of her civic character.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASEN

The Sheikh Speaks.

Feeling myself in a somewhat professional mood today, I invite you to have a little discourse with me, that is to say, let me discourse, for when there are two talking at once there can be no conversation. I shall speak up with a distinguished Arab sheik here in Paris, who hails from the remote fastnesses of the Atlas region in North Africa. This man said that he loved to roam the great cities of the continent, but that he always felt happy again when he returned to his wife's hearth, meaning the Sahara Desert. He assured me that it was the touch of the hot sand and the contemplation of the physical phenomena of his native environment which worked in him an elusive mixture of sadness and nostalgic happiness.

Cities with all the comforts that modern science has contrived, he said, did little to comfort him. They did not begin to weigh up against the unutterable well-being of crossing burning deserts of sleeping in tents that bulge and flap under the meteoric cold blasts from the snow-capped Atlas. And then the tremendous mystery of the African night, he said, when the stars swayed softly like silver balls on an invisible Christmas tree. "There I feel at home," said the sheik, "that's where I belong."

POLITICS OR PROTECTION.

But what gives these races that amazing sense of at-home-ness and familiarity with their surroundings?
I venture to say that there rests in the back of their heads something like a sensitive negative photographic plate, even if individuals journey far from their native haunts, stay away for generations and generations and still feel at home. Have we here not a rational explanation, or at least an approach to it, of the doctrine of the "American-born" Chinese youngster born in San Francisco who feels perfectly at home in Peking if he is transplanted there, they say.
Yes, I think it must be that photographic plate, the impression of home may be blurred and they have grown dimmed, but they revolve slowly as an awakening consciousness absorb the environment anew. It is the old-fashioned tonic, "Home has been here before!" They never have, of course, but their fathers for countless generations have, and so grew up a religious devotion, or the professional mood wore off, by the way.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

DISINFECTION OF THE CRYPTS

In a paper read before the Ft.
Wayne Medical Society and published in Physical Therapeutics in February, Dr. Noah Zehr observed that the laity is interested in any treatment for adult diseased tonsils that is less drastic, painful and hazardous than the old-fashioned tonsillectomy.
The doctor put it mildly, "I can testify that the laity is demanding such treatment. And I can state that the laity is getting it in some places where the medical profession is not too sympathetic; but is getting instead a lot of hokey in other places where the old timers have the public hypo-notized by their own contentment." Dr. Zehr finds that infection in the tonsils is generally seated in the crypts and this implies that it is only when the crypts are so damaged or distorted from the scar tissue deposited after repeated inflammatory reactions that they can no longer drain and cleanse themselves. The treatment becomes necessary to prevent or perhaps to cure a systemic trouble to the focus of infection in the tonsils.

Dr. Zehr advocates what he calls electrocrystectomy. That means cutting out the crypt with electricity.
It means it means electrocrystectomy of enough tonsil to cause all the crypts to join together in one flat crater with more or less lymphoid or normal tissue in its center and around its walls. This produces less scar tissue than the removal of the tonsil by the ordinary method does.
It is the minimum disturbance of the tonsils to the throat.

WIREGRAMS

BY GRAHAM WYER

Mr. Woodcock promises another prohibition drive for July. . . . The prohibition director's drives are all right, but when does the state department shoot? . . . Chicago had a majority election yesterday. . . . But until those 50-year debentures are paid off, the city will always have a big bill to revolve around the neck of its mayor.

Financial experts of America and England have agreed to treat each other as equals in the matter of money. . . . There are still many prominent families, however, who are using their silver heirlooms for emergency cash. . . . Douglas has been missed tonight in the Indian jungle. . . . We always thought Doug captured wild animals by riding them astride. . . . The former chairman of the board deposed deserted the sinking ship. . . . He only stepped off the merry-go-round when the revolving fund ran down.
Gandhi is planning a trip to America. . . . There's one prominent traveler who will show up with a lunch box for a wardrobe trunk. . . .
That's next to a cyclone collar, the rumble seat must be the safest place on earth. . . . Thirty-two states are carrying out new congressional districts.
The man in the green hat must serve 18 months in jail. . . . We would like to know just how long tip he has to give the hat checker when he gets it back. . . . The employment situation is better. . . . In some of the larger cities you now have to walk more than a block to buy an apple.
Southern democrats threaten to desert Raskob on the prohibition issue again. . . . If they do they will disprove the old adage that a bolt never strikes the same place twice.

Lawyer Dies.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 7.— (AP)—William A. Schofield, 69, a practicing lawyer here for 45 years, died of a stroke of apoplexy in the city of Chattanooga yesterday. Attorneys paid tribute to him as a friend of the people in trouble and a hard fighter in court.
He was stricken as he entered the courthouse to surrender a negro client for whom he had arranged bond that the client jumped.

The Conning Tower

BY F. P. A.

It is also fair, on our biased opinpartition, the hammering and sawing for which went on about four feet from our left ear. Yesterday, in order to erect a fence, an artisan hammered holes into the floor, an operation which took only five hours instead of all day. This paragraph is written to show that all we have to do is appear to be a rate, but the northern piece of verse, and regardless of whether it is better than our neighbors, the carpenters will beat a pathway to our door.

It was the treasured Times alone that printed in its obituary of May-Arbuckle, his best known line. It was said by him as Sheriff Slim Hooch in "The Round-Up," written by Edmund Day, and the Times said that it was "Nobody loves a fat man." Our memory of it is "Hell, nobody loves a fat man." It was produced in 1907, back in the nanby-pamby days, when the articulation of "Hell" on the stage was considered uptown.

carnation of the who was the least bit-

Mr. Lardner is in Tucson, Ariz.,

It was a surprise to many of us to read that Mr. Robert Gooding, the saxophonist, had pleaded guilty to bigamy. It is two more wives than we thought a saxophonist would have.

edy actress. . . . Evening Post.
Oh, she's extremely musical.

It looks as though the man who said that what this country needs is a good five-cent stock is about to get his wish.

In spite of what many Chicagoans think, Mr. William Hale Thompson is only human. And we wonder how he feels being runner-up in the Most-Discussed Mayor stakes.

The mayor praised the California sun, and the newspapers of that state are probably giving headlines to his "Walker Lauds Calif. Orb of Day."

"All I did there was loaf and recuperate," which is about the right to the recuperative powers of western platform. The voters and not try to be reconciled in their views. I certainly do not believe there will be any split in the party.

Robert H. Hoyle, Utah: "The country is looking to the democratic party for economic relief. Let's harmonize to the limit. If that is impractical, submit our differences to a referendum. The voters will settle now to settle the question so far in advance and before we are well advised of the wishes of those whom we might seem."

Increased Crime. Mrs. Anna O'Dea Murphy, Pennsylvania: "I am in hearty accord with the prohibition drive for solution of the prohibition problem. I believe prohibition should be left to the states. In Pennsylvania we are just as much in favor of temperance as the people of the south. Our viewpoint is different. Federal prohibition has been harmful to us, in that it increased crime and disrespect for the law. I believe in a working plan and one which there can be, if the disposition is there, full agreement."

Mrs. James J. Billington, New Jersey:
"I am in hearty cooperation with Mr. Raskob and approve of his methods."

While I am not prepared to say that Mr. Raskob's proposal is the best plan which can be devised for remedying the obvious evils of the present situation, he certainly earned the respect and gratitude of every American who admires courage and candor in the face of a great issue which cannot be evaded."

Scott Ferris, Oklahoma: "Let the prohibition question lie and heal our energies to economic rehabilitation."

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee, Mary-

The prohibition drive is a big job ernment being maintained in the borough," Mr. Barnwell said.

In many persons make their living in the borough, but live outside the limits and contribute nothing in taxes for its maintenance and operation.
This is fallacy and should not constitute a basis for annexation. The proposition of levying an occupational tax, but these in the main are not successful and it is difficult to enforce the borough should be extended on all sides. It should expand locally, and I believe that the limits
best yet evolved.

The council of the city of Atlanta in the decision to include all thickly populated sections in the annexation plan, Mr.
Barnwell declared that he will insist that the borough should be extended
on all sides. It should expand locally, and I believe that the limits
of the municipality of Atlanta are the best yet evolved.

It is manifestly unfair to include one man's property just because he lives on the side of the street and exclude another because he lives on the other side, when the territory beyond is thickly populated as is the case between Wesley avenue and beyond the city limits. The annexation plan has been a long time in the making and it is now pending before the charter revision committee containing stopping the annexation at Wesley avenue.

Alderman Alvin Richards, proponent of the measure which council at its session Monday referred to the charter revision committee, stated in offering the plan that he felt the limits should be extended to include territory between the present limits of the borough and Buckhead.

The council of the city of Atlanta, under the legislative enactment, is composed of the mayor of each of the boroughs and a councilman from each of the unincorporated districts.

If the Barnwell merger takes place, virtually all Fulton county and a large portion of DeKalb county will be annexed to the borough of Atlanta.

railroads to publish new rates, eliminating those violations, not later than April 9, to become effective May 9, but the mills have been successful in getting this date extended 30 days.

"Following the order of the commission the southern railroads have proposed rates 20 per cent higher than the present rates, but the northern and eastern railroads, who must concur in these rates, have demanded straight 'class' rates that are approximately 25 per cent in excess of the present level, so it is practically certain that the 'class' rates will be published."

"The present situation, therefore, is one in which the rates from New England mills have been voluntarily lowered, while the rates from the south are to be raised, the strategy of the southern mills so that the south will be placed at a distinct disadvantage."

"Under the leadership of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia and the Alabama Cotton Manufacturers' Association, the mills of the southeast elected a joint traffic committee of mill executives to direct the case against such rates as were necessary to protect the interests of the mills whose rates are involved.
This joint traffic committee is composed of the following executives: W. D. Anderson, Sr., chairman, Macon; N. E. Elsas, Atlanta; J. H. Cheatham, Griffin; Donald Comer, Birmingham, Ala.; E. L.
Willis, Anniston; George H. Lanier, West Point, Ga. Associated with this committee are D. A. Jewell, Jr., Chickamauga, president of the Alabama Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and Gordon Lovejoy, La-Grange, general counsel of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia.

Cottrell Special Counsel.
"Hon. Charles E. Cottrell, special counsel for the mills in the case, and is directing the legal phase of the fight."

Hon. Hugh White, president of the Alabama Public Service Commission, has generously offered the mills the full cooperation and assistance of his department in the case which is available in the case of the full services of
J. H. Aldredge, chief state examiner for the Alabama commission, who will be in charge of the statistical work.

"Atlanta has been set up to a complete rate and traffic department devoting its entire time to the study of the case which will be available in the case of the full services of
J. H. Aldredge, chief state examiner for
charge of the statistical work."

"These new rates will place the southern cotton mills on a parity with the northern consuming markets, and while they will effect a slight increase in the cost of the cotton, the increase is a great deal less than that proposed by the railroads. These rates suggested by the mills have already been offered to the railroads by the southeast at a conference in Atlanta on April 3, at which time the railroads agreed to a policy of the same basis, but the railroads refused to accept their proposal at a conference this week and it is hoped that the southeastern railroads will be agreeable to accept the interests of the mills of this section by approving these rates."

"Since the railroads of the south have the longest portion of the haul in transporting cotton from the south to the consuming markets, and therefore, they would get the major portion of the increased revenue under
the new rates, it is believed that the southern carriers but it will be to their interest to take advantage of this opportunity to co-operate with
the cotton producers in the south."
The bulk of the freight moving out of this territory, many Georgia and Alabama mills are already shipping much of their cotton by motor truck to the southern markets, and there is a steadily increasing movement of their products by truck to the distant markets in the middle west, the north, and the east.

They would get the major portion of the increased revenue under
the new rates, it is believed that the
their interest to take advantage of this opportunity to co-operate with
the cotton producers in the south."

"New England mills seem to have convinced their railroads that southern freight rates are largely responsible for the loss of business in the textile field, and this move on the part of the railroads is an effort to regain the business they have lost. Favorable freight rates, such as now obtain, together with the south's advantages in power costs, reasonable taxes, better climate, and more suitable labor, have brought about the investment of millions of dollars and the employment of hundreds of thousands of people in the cotton mills of the south, whose products have been shipped to the north by their ability to deliver their goods to the consuming markets on an equal basis with the mills of New England, and this is the reason for such a terrible disadvantage in their markets by the increase in freight rates may cause many southern mills to discontinue operating, and thereby, bringing about the confiscation of much valuable property and equipment, and the unemployment of thousands of workers, and the industrial growth and progress of the south will be seriously retarded."

CALLAWAY ENTERS PLEA, FINED $300

Ex-Councilman Resigns as Deputy; 6 Months' Sentence Is Alternative.

T. Frank Callaway, former councilman, Tuesday morning resigned as deputy under Sheriff James I. Lowry and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of accepting a $100 bribe from P. O. Hebert for his good will toward three fire department equipment concerns. Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy fined Callaway $300, with the alternative of a six-month sentence.

Callaway's plea was a surprise in courthouse circles, the former councilman having previously announced his intention of fighting his case. It followed the recent action of the grand jury in returning a new indictment of five counts to take the place of a single count indictment returned months ago. Acceptance of the plea to Count 2 of the true bill acted as an automatic acquittal of the other counts, it was explained.

The count to which Callaway pleaded guilty alleged that he accepted the money to influence his official behavior as a councilman in the purchase of fire equipment from the American LaFrance Fire Engine Company, the Eureka Fire Hose Manufacturing Company and the American LaFrance and Foamite Industries, Inc., in 1928.

Other city hall cases will be postponed until next week, due to the fact that Solicitor-General John A. Boykin will be engaged for several days in trial of a murder case. Defendants on Judge Pomeroy's calendar of city hall cases are H. C. McCutcheon, Claude E. Buchanan and J. T. Osburn, who are charged with bribery.

FINES ARE RAISED ON FISH SHIPPERS

SEATTLE, Wash., April 7.—(AP)—Regretting he could not send two Seattle businessmen to prison following their conviction on a charge of shipping condemned salmon from here to Georgia, Federal Judge George M. Bourquin today raised the official fine of $500 he had imposed on them to $800.

The men, Robert Damas, broker, and Harry Buttnick, manager of the Buttnick Manufacturing Co., were given three months and seven months in jail, respectively, and fined $300 each.

Following their motion for a new trial Judge Bourquin said he was wrong in imposing jail sentences, denounced the "shocking irregularities of the law" and set the sentences aside.

Buttnick paid his fine but Damas failed to do so and was held in custody by the United States marshal.

Small Loan Act, Upheld Often, To Be Tested in High Court Again

Georgia's small loan act, similar to laws passed in more than half of the states of the Union by the Russell Sage Foundation in its war on loan sharks, has been upheld several times by the supreme court of Georgia and the supreme court of the United States has held it to be constitutional.

A decision rendered in Floyd superior court, however, by Judge James Madox probably will bring the case to the supreme court again, attorneys for the defendant company in a suit to restrain foreclosure having announced they would appeal from his ruling.

Not only has it been upheld in Georgia since first contested, in 1922, but it has been upheld in several states of the Union and on several occasions the same questions involved in the Floyd county suit have been decided in favor of the comparatively uniform loan law.

A series of constitutional objections were raised in the case of Badger against the state, tried before Judge Pendleton, in Fulton superior court, and decided by the supreme court during the October, 1922, term. Chief Justice Fish writing the opinion for a unanimous court said then:

'Big Bill,' Beaten and Tired, Quietly Plans Needed Rest

BY H. R. BURTON.
CHICAGO, April 7.—(AP)—"Big Bill" Thompson called his cowboy lariat tonight and hung it away in the corner of forgotten things.

He rode the political range for the last time today, and tonight, a tired man, watched while others rounded up the flock that so long was his to guide.

It was the end of 12 years of frontier color and drive—"Big Bill," the Builder, "Big Bill," the master showman, "Big Bill," the playboy symbol of a roistering west.

"I'm tired," he said, "I'm going to rest." The smile was forced and the laughter came hard.

He looked old slumped in a corner of a wide-winged desk chair. The broad shoulders that once set off the 10-gallon cowboy hat were sagging. The graven head bent.

It was not the "Big Bill" who denounced King George. It was not the "Big Bill" who stood jauntily before an audience and sent it into cheers or tears with a voice that keyed his expensive gestures.

Nor was the scene the same. The tinkling piano that thumped out campaign songs was missing. The mayor's office was crowded, but he was elsewhere, not in the midst of the friends who came to watch the end as they had watched the beginning.

A lonely man, he sat quietly with a few intimates in the office of Corporation Counsel Samuel E. Littleton and in quiet tones chatted of the outcome. A photographer asked him to smile.

He shook his head. More people drifted in. He shook hands, and that was all.

Then the time came for him to issue a statement. He retired behind a locked door. Close friends were summoned. And suddenly there rang out laughter again. Big Bill was putting on his last show, but it was a pale echo of old times.

The friends came and went. Men and women—a 10-gallon hat here, a shock of white hair and a snow beard there—lingered outside the door.

It was certain for a half hour or so. And then "Big Bill" in a new role—the well-wisher of his opponent, Anton J. Cermak—the man he called "Tony," asked about his "pushcart," ridiculed.

"I congratulate Mr. Cermak upon his election. And as a private citizen I will do all in my power for the upbuilding of our great city."

Big Bill Thompson had done the unexpected thing. Then, to top that off, he walked to his own office. He talked to reporters.

"I'm tired of working for 3,500,000 people. Now I'll work for myself a while."

If there was more regret in his answer than the smile on his face would presuppose it was drowned by the noise from outside. The aerial bombs were cracking. Bands were playing on Clark street. Ticker tape was eddying down.

It was Tony Cermak's show now.

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—Colonel Michael Friedsam, one-time dry goods clerk, who became a merchant prince, patron of the arts and civic benefactor, died today of a heart ailment.

Since 1913 he had been president of B. Altman & Co., large Fifth Avenue department store whose employee he entered when he was graduated from Weston (Conn.) Military Academy.

His private gallery in East 68th street housed one of the greatest art collections in this country.

He served as quartermaster general of the New York national guard during the war, studied commercial and economic conditions abroad at the behest of President Harding and in 1925 Governor Smith named him head of a commission to study the financing of schools.

E. B. Powell, who has been appointed manager of the Atlanta store of the Duval Jewelry Company, succeeding Charles L. Wells. Mr. Wells has been made manager of all the company's stores in Georgia and Florida and will make his headquarters in Jacksonville.

The company opened the Atlanta store about two years ago, and throughout this time its sales have shown a steady growth, according to A. O. Jenkins, president. Mr. Wells has been manager of the store from the start and the success of the store is said to be largely responsible for his promotion.

Mr. Powell has also been located with the Atlanta store since its establishment and is credited with aiding Mr. Wells materially in its successful operation.

Motorists in France have been greatly aroused by the introduction of a private member's bill to the chamber, in which it is proposed to replace the existing tax on motor cars by a super-tax on gasoline amounting to 68 cents per hectolitre, or nearly a gallon.

The author of the bill, M. Malinve, argues that the present system of taxing the car itself is unfair to the ordinary user, who is called on to pay as much in taxation as owners who average double and even 10 times the mileage. His proposal is based on the principle that the tax on motoring should be in direct ratio to the use made of the roads.

M. Malinve further stated that, under the present system, the owner of a 10-horsepower car pays a direct tax of $32.40 a year. Such a rate of taxation if the impost were based on gasoline consumption at the rate of 68 cents a gallon, and assuming that the car used 11 litres for every 100 kilometers, would give an ordinary 10-horsepower car a mileage of 14-375 a year, or approximately a little over 275 miles a week. This is far above the average motor car owner's record.

Critics who are adversely inclined to the proposal insist that, although the average automobile owner would apparently benefit from the change, the proposal would prove unworkable in practice, and would result in serious hardships to owners of commercial vehicles.

In 1929 these comprised nearly one-third of the total motor vehicles registered in France, while over 70 per cent of the so-called "touring cars" are primarily used for business purposes by traders, commercial travellers, agriculturists and others.

FRENCH GAS TAX BILL DRAWS OPPOSITION

Reporter Can't Find One of 73,000 Cabs

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—The reporter stood in the rain waiting for a taxicab.

His new hat got wet. So did his none-too-waterproof topcoat, every few seconds he waved frantically at a passing cab. None stopped, for all were occupied.

He became madder and wetter. He already was late for work. In desperation, he sloshed to the office on foot.

The city editor grumbled greetings as the tardy scrivener, wet as a washcloth, sat down.

"Write me a little piece," said the city editor, "about this." And he tossed him a sheet of manuscript.

The reporter, all wet because he couldn't get a taxicab, wrote it. Here it is:

The back bureau of the police department announced today that there now are operating in New York streets 73,626 taxicabs.

INSTALLMENT XV.

Feodor was not too even-tempered a man, but his work had trained him in a hard school. He realized that Toni was very tired and excited, and with some effort he bit back the angry retort that rose to his lips, and took hold of her arm.

"Toni, dear, listen," he said quietly. "You are making a mistake. I telegraphed you that work would keep me in Paris, which was perfectly true. I had some dispatches to decipher that were of the utmost importance. About 9 o'clock Greta telephoned to me at my apartment and asked me if I would take her to dinner. I said certainly, and came along here. I found she preferred it here instead of going out, as she was tired. Surely I have not been very criminal in my actions, and neither do I quite deserve the things you have been saying to me."

Toni lifted her eyebrows, her young face hard.

"I never knew a man to admit he deserved the things a woman said to him," she said. "And, anyhow, it really isn't of the slightest consequence. I made a mistake, that was all. I thought, perhaps, you would be glad to take me out to dinner, and would be pleased to see me, as you could not come to Le Touquet. I really have nobody but myself to blame. Do you mind not delaying me, Feodor? I want a bath."

He dropped his hand, which he had been holding out to her.

"Toni," he said abruptly, "are you trying to force a quarrel?"

"Force a quarrel?" Toni raised her eyebrows in some mock amazement. "I haven't the least intention of quarreling. It is much too hot. I don't know what all this fuss is about. I merely told you that I was sorry I was intruding on a very pleasant tea-tete, and so I am. Have you anything to complain of there, Feodor?"

"There are ways and ways of telling things, Toni," he said, very quietly. "And I must say that at the present moment I object to the one you are employing. You are annoyed to find me at dinner with your sister. Why should I not? You could hardly expect me to refuse."

"Oh, no," Toni said lightly. "I certainly wouldn't expect you to refuse. I never knew a man to refuse Greta anything. I ask you to let me go. Please do as I say."

"Will you let me take you out to supper, Toni?" Feodor said, but Toni shook her head.

"No, thank you; I prefer to go straight to bed. I'm going back to Le Touquet tomorrow, Feodor, and so I shan't see you. You might let me know when you intend to come down, if you do intend to come at all."

Try as he would, Feodor was beginning to be angry, for he felt she was treating him unjustly. It annoyed him, too, to realize how this young girl, looking up at him with her hard blue eyes, could hurt him, how she could disturb his equanimity, how passionately he longed to reach out to her in his anger, and at this last refusal he drew back.

"Very well," he said, trying to speak as carelessly as he did, "if you don't wish for my society this evening, I won't force it on you. I'm sorry you are so tired. Perhaps you will permit me to call upon you in the morning."

It was a dangerous thing to give way to temper, and Toni knew it, but though she longed passionately to throw herself into his arms, she longed almost equally to hurt him, and the latter emotion won the day.

"I don't know whether I shall be at liberty in the morning," she said. "I am going to do some shopping, and I'll take the 12 o'clock train back. I don't think you had better put yourself out to call on me, thank you, Feodor. If you are at a loss for anything to do, you might take Greta out."

Feodor stiffened.

"This is absurd," he said shortly. "What are we quarreling about, Toni? You know perfectly well there is no one in the world I want to take out, or to see, but yourself, and anyhow, this can't go on. If you are going to misjudge me to completely, it doesn't seem to me that you can care for me very much."

"Is that a threat?" she asked slowly. "You had better not threaten, Feodor. It's not a thing I'll stand for."

"Don't be so dramatic, Toni. I don't want you to stand for anything. I am merely trying to tell you that you are acting ridiculously. What do you expect me to do when your sister asks me to dine with her? Say that you would be jealous if I did?"

He had lost his temper in his turn now, and the word "jealous" roused Toni to fury.

"Jealous," he answered. "Really, Feodor, I wasn't aware that you were so conceited. Certainly, I did not expect you to refuse Greta, but I did expect that you would tell me the truth. That's all. As for the morning—please yourself. I am going by the 12 o'clock train. I shall be busy all the rest of the time, but it seems rather a pity that you should trouble to come to Le Touquet at all, doesn't it?"

He took a step nearer as she was speaking, his face very white, his mouth grim.

"Do you mean to say that you do not wish me to come to Le Touquet?" he said. "You understand, I suppose, that if you don't want me to come there, you don't want me to all. I am not going to force myself upon you, or be object, any more than you are. You have refused me a fair hearing. You have been unreasonable and very unkind. When you feel inclined to be sensible I am at your service. Until then, I agree that we had better not meet."

There was a moment's silence—a silence in which Toni could feel the emotion and misery of this sudden, unlooked-for, ridiculous quarrel, though even then she would not give way.

"I think that is entirely the best thing," she said. "We will just leave it as it is. Don't trouble to wait. Say good night to Greta for me. We shall meet some time by accident, I suppose; until then au revoir."

Hardly believing that she was really alive and not dreaming, Toni took hold of the handle of her door and pulled it to. She had one last glimpse of him standing rigidly still, his hands clenched, his face hard and grim, his eyes blazing. Then she closed the door, slipped the bolts, and sank in a miserable heap on the couch.

The tiresome everyday details of life, that will intrude themselves there on great joy or great sorrow, intruded themselves now. By the steam that poured out of her bathroom and by the noise from it, she gathered that the bath was nearly overflowing, and after a minute or two she dragged herself up, went in and turned off the water and then, coming back into the bedroom, sat down on the edge of the bed, utterly disconsolate and miserable. She was under no misapprehension as to what had happened. Quite unexpectedly, utterly unreasonably, she had quarreled with Feodor, and she knew that Feodor was no boy to be quarreled with easily. That she had hurt him terribly she knew; that she had hurt him wrong she knew, she was certain. She could hardly believe that the love which meant so much to her was at an end. That she had been right or wrong, Feodor had no right to lose his temper as he did. Nobody should tell her she was jealous and foolish. How dare he! How dare he!

Some time later Greta came to the door and knocked. Toni lifted her head from the pillow.

"You can't come in. What do you want?" she said in a curt voice.

Greta answered: "Toni, don't be such an idiot. Let me in, I want to talk to you."

But Toni, who had refused Feodor, was not likely to admit her sister.

European Nobility Preparing For Wedding of Royalty Today

PALERMO, Sicily, April 7.—(UP)—A young prince and his princess made their final bows tonight in preparation for their wedding tomorrow before the nobility of Europe.

Prince Henri, 23, count of Paris, and 18-year-old Princess Isabelle, of Orleans and Braganca, will be married by Cardinal Lavitrano, archbishop of Palermo, in the chapel of the Villa D'Aumale.

The principals to the wedding and their guests attended a dinner and reception in the villa, property of the Duke of Guise, father of Prince Henri and pretender to the French throne, at which 1,000 noblemen and aristocrats from a dozen countries were present.

Some 325 of them, mostly French high-born persons, retired for the night on a French ship in the Palermo harbor. The boat brought them from Marseilles and served them as a hotel, since all the regular hotels are filled.

At 11 o'clock in the morning Henri and Isabelle will be married according to the rites of the Catholic church. The bride's father, Prince Pierre D'Orleans Braganca, will give her away.

It will be a brilliant ceremony with titled guests from France, Belgium, Italy, Spain, Yugoslavia, Denmark, Portugal, and Greece in attendance.

The Italian royal family, however, will not be represented officially, although Italian princes of the blood will be present. Nor will the Italian government be represented officially, since the marriage is regarded as private.

The marriage will unite two descendants of Louis Philippe, last king of France, who abdicated three-quarters of a century ago. French royalists consider that the marriage gives the Duke of Guise, and after him the count of Paris, a better chance of some day re-establishing and mounting the French throne.

Golden Rule Fund Chairman Is Distinguished Visitor Here

Mrs. John H. Finley, of New York, a notable figure in welfare work of the east, who is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. William Howell Kiser, Jr., at her home on Seventeenth street.

A distinguished visitor in the city is Mrs. John H. Finley, of New York, who is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. William Howell Kiser, Jr., at her home on East Seventeenth street. Her splendid work in connection with the Y. W. C. A. is well known throughout the south and she addressed members of the local organization at a luncheon given in her honor Monday. Serving with her on the Golden Rule committee are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, honorary chairman, who launched the movement; Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, secretary, and a number of others whose names are prominently linked with welfare work throughout the country.

"The Golden Rule Foundation has heretofore been concerned only with needy children in various institutions throughout the world," said Mrs. Finley in talking of the movement, "but this year, due to the stress of the times and the unemployment situation in this country, we are limiting the scope of our efforts to needy mothers and children in the United States. Perhaps, when times are better, we shall be able to extend our help again to all lands, but just now we are concentrating our efforts on the offering to be taken Sunday."

May 10. We are making a fresh start with Mother's Day. We don't claim that it is a new idea; we are just using a day that has already been set apart for a special expression of mother love. This year we thought there were special needs to raise money for needy mothers and children and it occurred to us that Mother's Day could well be used for that purpose.

N. Carolina Organizes. Various state committees of the Golden Rule Foundation are in process of organization, with governors of many states sponsoring the work. North Carolina organized last week at a meeting held at the home of former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, at Raleigh. "Offerings may be taken at any place and devoted to any individual, any case, or any institution deemed worthy," said Mrs. Finley. "We only take and distribute those offerings made directly to our organization. From now until May 10 we hope to have nationwide publicity on this new note in the universal observance of Mother's Day. It does not in any way interfere with established customs of gifts and messages to living mothers, but it does direct attention to a great many mothers who are not even remotely affected or helped by present methods of observing the day."

In conclusion Mrs. Finley added: "The Golden Rule Mothers' Fund committee makes a significant challenge to the thousands whose mothers have passed beyond the reach of gifts and loving messages. The only definite thing such men and women can do is honor of mother by to wear a flower on Mother's Day to indicate that the mother whose memory they cherish is no longer with them. The effort to continue, 'but just now we are concentrating our efforts on the offering to be taken Sunday.'"

BODY OF DROWNED EX-ATLANTAN SOUGHT

James A. Butler, a native of Atlanta, who was lost overboard while trying to change positions with a companion in a row boat off West Palm Beach Sunday, had not been found up to a late hour Tuesday.

T. T. Martin, his companion at the time, swam ashore when the boat capsized, gave the alarm and a fleet of small craft started out in an attempt to recover the body which was believed to have been swept out to sea by the tide.

Before his removal to Florida about three years ago to become local manager of the American Optical Company, Mr. Butler lived in Atlanta for 20 years, being a member of the Georgia Avenue Presbyterian church and later a member of the West End Presbyterian church. He was a Mason and a member of the Battle Hill Lodge No. 523.

He is survived by his wife; a son, James A. Butler, Jr.; four sisters, Mrs. George L. Duncan, Mrs. S. O. Mills and Mrs. H. A. Daniel, of Atlanta, and Mrs. S. H. Daniel, of Chattanooga; two brothers, Candler W. Butler, of Atlanta, and Roy Butler, of Anniston, Ala. Funeral services will be held in Atlanta in the event that the body is recovered.

TALKING IT OVER BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Nature Creates and Man Destroys the Prime Requisite for Happiness—It Takes Two to Make a Quarrel and It Sometimes Takes Three to Settle It—The Innocent Suffer With the Guilty But in a Different Way and in a Different Degree.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Seven years ago I married a university girl who was a fine girl and popular. We respected each other but we didn't love each other. My feeling toward her has not changed but she thinks she is in love with me. For three years our lives were miserable on account of jealousies—jealousies on both sides. Finally we got things adjusted and soon after I decided to move to a larger town. She protested, for good reasons of her own, but I was ambitious and moved. She has visited me several times but I feel much happier without her. Here is the only decent thing I can do to divorce my wife and marry this girl. My wife is three years my senior, unexcelled in honesty, virtue and loyalty to me. Although the young girl has only been through the tenth grade in school she has a well-poised bearing. Give me some advice.

EVAN.

ANSWER:

You have a most remarkable conception of decency. It demands that you desert a woman to whom you are married, a woman whom you declare is the soul of honor, virtue and loyalty to you, if she desires that you desert her for a young woman who has been divorced and who has been conscienceless enough to involve herself with a married man. My dictionary defines decency in quite another way. And you will find out, if you pursue this immoral plan, that your conception of the word will undergo quite a change.

You want advice? Then here it is: Write to your wife, and demand that she pack her trunk and come to live with you. Tell her that you have lived in this way as long as you intend to. Duty demands that you explain to her the snarl into which you have gotten your life, due to her failure to do her duty and to your folly of leaving her and making your life without her.

The third party will suffer, you say. Yes, all of you will suffer, but that is the price of breaking society's laws. They are not arbitrary. They are built on the moral law and are designed to protect the greatest number of individuals. They say that when a man marries a woman, he shall live with her and not away from her. They decree that a married man shall not allow himself to become involved with a third party. They say that if you break these laws you shall suffer and with you all that love you and all those you love. The laws of the land are to protect the family.

Any way you turn you must pay. Any move you make will be costly. It is the pound of flesh that society demands. One thing is requisite for peace of mind and therefore for happiness: Nature creates it and men destroy it. It is a clear conscience.

STATE FARM LOANS INCREASE $45,005

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Farm loans to Georgia, under appropriations made at the last session of congress increased $45,005, between March 31 and April 3, according to a statement given out today by the department of agriculture.

The greater part of this came from the $2,000,000 fund for use in Georgia, the Carolinas and Florida, for farmers who suffered from storm and drought conditions in both 1929 and 1930, this amounting to $37,807, making a total from this source for the state of $114,504.

The entire amount of loans up to April 3, for Georgia, which have been approved under the $45,000,000 appropriation is $1,111,100, an increase of $7,208 between the dates mentioned above.

VETERANS' BUREAU SALARY ATTACKED

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Suit to prevent payment of $2,500 veterans' disability allowance annually to William Wolff Smith, chief counsel of the Veterans' Bureau, in addition to his annual salary from the bureau of $9,000, was filed today by John A. Smalling, of Washington, a World War veteran.

Explaining he took the action as a taxpayer, Smalling asked the District of Columbia supreme court for an injunction against payment of the disability allowance. Secretary Melvin L. B. Schommer, disbursing officer of the Veterans' Bureau, and Smith were named defendants.

Smalling alleged payment of disability compensation to Smith was illegal and asserted he had been informed Smith served 60 days during the war in a non-combatant unit.

Power Company Head Says No "Strikebreakers" Have Been Employed.

While electrical workers Tuesday night said they were willing for the mayor and general council or any other public fair-minded body to act as intermediary in the dispute between them and Allied Engineers, Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, declared, there is nothing to arbitrate and denied charges of union heads that the company had "imported strikebreakers."

T. L. Elder, business manager of the local council of electrical men, announced that in line with a councilmanic resolution passed Monday the electrical workers would be willing for the mayor and council or any other fair-minded body to try the case and settle it on its merits.

Mr. Arkwright stated that although the company had agreed to sign a contract with union workers, the strike was called because Allied Engineers would not enter into a similar agreement.

"There is no need for any arbitration or intermediary," Mr. Arkwright said. "The company has not black-listed its former employees who were let away from their jobs by the union. These former employees of the company or any of them, if they desire, can at any time discuss any matter they want to with the officers of this company. Several of the men who left their jobs on the order of the union have already returned to their work. We are willing to consider the applications of any of the others who may want to be re-employed by the company on the basis of the individual ability of the applicants and on the basis of the availability of jobs."

THE BEST DRUM OF ALL.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Regardless of how good the rest we always want the very best.

—Yellow Wing the Flicker.

All the scolding that Chatterer the Red Squirrel could do had no effect on Yellow Wing the Flicker. Early every morning he sent his long rolling rat-a-tat-tat-tat ringing through the Green Forest as he drummed on a dead limb of the tree in which Chatterer lived. He didn't say any attention to Chatterer. Between the long rolls of his drumming he would call, a loud, clear note, several times repeated, as if he could not be called a song, yet with the rat-a-tat-tat-tat of his drumming, gave expression to the song in his heart, the joy of spring.

One morning after his drumming was over he flew up to the Old Orchard, hoping he might find Mrs. Yellow Wing there, for she had not returned from the Sunning place. He found her sitting on a branch, and suddenly it struck him that that roof didn't look like the roof of the house. To begin with it was red.

"That is queer looking wood," thought Yellow Wing. "Yes, sir, that is queer looking wood. Funny I never have noticed it before. I wonder if it is like other wood."

He flew down on the roof and found that his claws didn't hold on it, and that was queer. However, that roof was nearly flat. At that moment he heard a noise as if a nutcracker had been struck with his bill and the sound made him jump. Yes, sir, the sound made him jump. He struck again, harder than before, and his eyes sparkled. The best drum he ever had had in the Green Forest didn't compare with this. He beat a long roll—rat-a-tat-tat-tat-tat. What a drum! It was wonderful. At least it was wonderful to Yellow Wing. He tried it again.

That is Yellow Wing the Flicker, but where under the sun he is to make such a noise as that? He muttered Farmer Brown's Boy. He got out of bed and went to the window. Just as he got there Yellow Wing beat another long roll. Cautiously Farmer Brown's Boy peeped out. There was Yellow Wing with his head to one side listening—a picture of content and self-satisfaction. Then he beat out another long roll.

Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled. "You are better than the best alarm clock I ever heard," said he, "under his breath. 'No one can sleep with such a racket going on. I ought to scare you away, but you are having such a good time I can't do it. I hope you are not going to get me up at this hour every morning.'"

The next story: "Mrs. Yellow Wing Arrives." (Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution.)

The sleeve in Carmel where they have been a vogue with the artistic colony for some years past. They are "black-out" in Hollywood and they are the latest vogue. Played with all the ingenuity which professionals can bring to them, the "blackouts" reach a degree of perfection not attained in other localities. They often reach a degree of "nap" not arrived at in non-professional centers.

There's always a vogue of some sort in Hollywood. The colony likes games because they keep them from gossiping about personalities and pictures. They grow weary of never saying what they really think and they don't care to be unkind.

And while blackouts are in vogue, they are taking the place by storm. Meanwhile the good old practical jokes are doing business at the same stand. The latest retailed me is the one Al Bronsberg played on the Woolseys while they were at the theater last night.

Bronsberg called the Woolsey home and said to the servant: "This is the city water department. The central main has burst and we are going to shut off the water supply in 30 minutes for repairs that will last at least two days. Kindly run enough water to last you for that much time."

When Woolsey and the better half returned from the theater, they fell over pots and pans and tubs and vases by his widow and four sisters, with all available floor space and shelf space was crowded with things hauled out. It took until dawn to bail the water.

But Hollywood—a childish locality at heart—just dots on putting over something of the sort.

BULLET WOUND FATAL YEAR AFTER INFLECTION

Creed Vaughn, 34, of 1786 Elgier avenue, died Tuesday at a private hospital from an infection which set in as a result of a bullet wound accidentally self-inflicted more than a year ago. He was the operator of the beauty and barber shop in the Robert Fulton hotel.

About 14 months ago Mr. Vaughn dropped a pistol at his shop and it discharged, lodging a bullet in his foot. An operation was performed three weeks ago to remove the bullet, and subsequently the infection set in.

Mr. Vaughn was a member of the Cooper Street Baptist church and of the Elks. He came to Atlanta 12 years ago from Louisville, Ky., and became connected with the beauty shop trade at that time. He is survived by his widow and four sisters, Mrs. O. L. Corbin, Mrs. Ed Serry, Mrs. L. A. Bumgardner and Miss Bessie Vaughn. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at the Cooper Street Baptist church. Interment will be in Crest Lawn cemetery.

FLAT HAILSTONES FALL ON MOUNT OLYMPUS

Recently reported to the British meteorological office in London, they remain a curiosity for which that office is unable to give an explanation.

Lawrence S. Camp Urges Merger In Address Before Women Voters

Advantages of the merger of Fulton and Campbell counties as a purely economical expedient, designed to simplify the machinery and reduce the expenses of county government, were demonstrated Tuesday afternoon by Lawrence S. Camp, chairman of the state democratic executive committee. Mr. Camp addressed members of the League of Women Voters in the Taverna tea room.

Dissociating the merger altogether from politics, Mr. Camp presented facts and figures amassed after extensive research and pointing to the economical benefits—both immediate and ultimate—that both counties may expect from the proposed merger.

"It is conceded that the necessity for county mergers is greater in Georgia than in any other state of the Union," Mr. Camp pointed out. "It is high time that the people were taking charge and managing the government of our state, counties and municipalities for themselves, and it has fallen to the lot of Fulton and Campbell to set the pace for other counties by eliminating as many public offices as good government will permit."

"Politicians" Opposed. "Naturally, the professional politicians are opposed to mergers," Mr. Camp asserted. "From the standpoint of those who desire an income from the public treasury, new counties furnish a great field filled with numerous offices for themselves and for their friends."

The bill giving Fulton county the right to vote on the merger, contrary to the terms of the constitution which provides that only inhabitants of the county seeking to abolish itself are to be accorded a voice in the matter,

"does not obligate Fulton county to an equitable consideration of the territory and the people of Campbell county," Mr. Camp declared. "And if this merger is effected, it simply means that Campbell county is giving to Fulton every asset, with few liabilities, and without exacting from Fulton a single promise."

Campbell County Assets. Among assets of Campbell county which would automatically become the property of Fulton in the event of a merger, Mr. Camp lists the following: School buildings, lands and equipment valued at approximately $128,700; convict camp, that "old and road machinery" valued at $25,000; pauper farm with live stock and other equipment valued at approximately $20,000; certificates of indebtedness from the state highway department for the sum of $205,803; besides the county courthouse, jail and other accessories, and an income from taxes of approximately $72,000.

"As to police protection, the fines and forfeitures coming into your courts will more than pay the expense of the trials and the cost of police protection for the territory of Campbell county," Mr. Camp pointed out.

At the request of league members, Willis Everett, Jr., Atlanta lawyer, followed Mr. Camp's remarks with an address in which he pointed out some of the disadvantages of the merger, protesting at the same time with numerous offices for themselves and for their friends.

WIDOW NUMBER 2 MOURNS DEAD EDITOR

YUMA, Ariz., April 7.—The mystery-shrouded trial of Hutton Bellah, 38-year-old former Atlanta, Okla., newspaper publisher, led today to the bier of William A. Lee, editor and publisher of the Yuma (Ariz.) Sentinel, where two women mourned as widows.

The publisher killed himself yesterday with a pistol, in the presence of his second wife, when, apparently, he discovered his real identity was about to be revealed.

Mrs. Hutton Bellah, viewing the body today, said Lee and her missing husband were the same man. Mrs. Lee, the former Edna Louis Schatz, of Plattville, Wis., said she married the man in Rockford, Ill., July 17, 1930, without knowledge he ever had been married before.

Bellah moved with his family from Altus to Los Angeles in October, 1929, and on December 28, 1929, dropped from sight. "He had lost heavily in the stock market," Mrs. Bellah said. "He threatened suicide just before he disappeared."

English Twins Born In Different Counties

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Eng., April 7.—(AP)—The birth of twins in different counties and on successive days set the "old wives' corner" abuzzing today.

Mrs. C. D. Purvis became a mother of a girl at New Harrington, county of Durham, last night. Her condition became so serious that doctors ordered her removed to maternity hospital here, about 14 miles distant in the county of Northumberland. The other twin—a boy—was born today.

Adams, of Columbia county, today told the state supreme court he saw no reason why he should be restrained from trying two newspapermen and their publishing company for alleged libel against Governor Doyle E. Carlton.

Petition for the writ was filed by C. W. Hollingsworth, William Coleman and the Herald Publishing Company, of South Jacksonville, who were indicted by a Columbia county grand jury. They claimed the Columbia county court had no jurisdiction, since publication of the alleged libel took place in Duval county.

In his answer, Judge Adams took the position the alleged offense also was committed in Columbia county, since copies of the South Jacksonville Herald, a weekly newspaper, were circulated in that county.

ATLANTA MUSIC CLUB NAMES NEW OFFICERS AT MEETING

Mrs. Bedard Is Re-elected President of Organization

Mrs. Walter H. Bedard was re-elected to the presidency of the Atlanta Music Club for the season of 1931-32 at the meeting last evening, presiding over the program of chamber music given by the Atlanta Arts Trio in the Westinghouse auditorium. Other officers elected were: Mrs. R. H. King, first vice president and chairman of the membership; Mrs. Paul E. Bryan, second vice president and chairman of the morning musicales; Mrs. Grace Lee Townsend, third vice president and chairman of the study course programs; Mrs. Jane E. Mattingly, recording secretary; Miss Lydia Wheeler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Cliff Hatcher, treasurer; Mrs. B. L. Bugg, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. H. G. Hastings, parliamentarian.

Under Mrs. Bedard's regime this season the Atlanta Music Club has enjoyed one of the most successful seasons in its history, and has seen the development of many musical projects with noteworthy success. Mrs. Bedard's capability as a leader was nationally recognized in the early spring when, following the convention of the Civic Concert Service, Inc., in Chicago, Miss Dena E. Harschberger, head of that organization, wrote a letter to the Atlanta Music Club complimenting their president for her inspirational influence at the convention as well as her helpful and efficient suggestions.

The entire corps of officers is well known for untiring services in the Atlanta Music Club. Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Townsend have both served as chairmen of the morning musicales and study course programs, respectively, during the present season, and have presented a series of programs throughout the season unparalleled in artistic value. Each officer selected has for many seasons been actively identified with the club, lending her efforts in a combined movement for the best in things musical to be presented to the community.

An announcement of interest was made by Mrs. Bedard of two of the artists already engaged for next season's concert series, namely: Claudia Muzio, dramatic soprano of the Chicago Opera Company, one of the foremost women singers of the world today, and Ethel Leginska and her Boston Women's Symphony orchestra. Leginska was brought back in response to the great demand for her that has been made since her concert last year. Announcements of other artists in the series for the fall and winter of 1931-32 will be made at a later date.

KING GEORGE KNOWS AUTOS

King George often surprises people by his knowledge of subjects about which he would ordinarily be supposed to know only a little.

For instance, the recent visit of Sir Malcolm Campbell, the racing motorist, to Buckingham palace, to receive his knighthood for establishing the world's land speed record, revealed that the king has a large technical knowledge of automobiles.

He conversed with Sir Malcolm about automobile engines, cylinders, "hot spots," and other intricacies. The king used to drive himself in earlier days, but now he is content to ride behind his head chauffeur.

King George often talks with his chauffeur about his auto. The recent appearance of a new type of stone and flint preventer—a strong wire grating which stops stray stones picked up by the tires from hitting the mudguards, was the result of one of these chats between the king and his chauffeur.

SHIP SMOKESTACK USED AS SMOKING SALON

A huge trans-Atlantic passenger liner was equipped recently with a novelty in the way of officers' quarters. A smoking room is built into its forward smokestack. Since it is a motor vessel, its funnels are dummies. Their great size, however, enables their interiors to be used to good advantage, says Popular Science Monthly. In this ship the oddly-located smoke room is designed exclusively for the use of engineer officers. Port-holes in the smokestack admit light from the sides, while a frosted skylight passes light into it from above. The marine "porthouse" is furnished with comfortable lounging chairs.

She has been named by C. Bascom Slemm, American commissioner, to superintend the furnishing of the United States building. Thwarted in Elopement Plan, Girl Grieves Over Lost 'Pek'

Downstairs in the men's ward young Bill Rhodes, of the same Alabama town, was far less loquacious. Policeman J. N. Sewell found them

DR. WILLIAM S. BAER DEAD AT BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, April 7.—(AP)—Dr. William S. Baer, internationally known orthopedic surgeon, died today of the effects of a stroke of paralysis at his home at Rehoboth Beach, Delaware. He was 59 years old.

Dr. Baer was a member of the faculty of Johns Hopkins medical school for 32 years, and his name was connected with a number of medical discoveries.

The most recent was the result of his service in France as chief orthopedic consultant of the American expeditionary forces. He found that the grub of the bottle fly would clear up deep-seated infections of the bone that defied all other methods of treatment.

Recently the grub method has been tested in treating tuberculosis of the bone.

Dr. Baer's reputation was established long before the war, especially for his work among children.

An operation he performed more than 15 years ago was regarded as among the most remarkable in surgery. He broke the jaw bones of a boy in his teens who had been born without joints, chiseled joints and made the child normal.

CHICAGO, April 7.—(AP)—Fellow jurors in the trial of Leo Brothers for the murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, contradicted in statements to the Tribune today the assertion of Philip Hagerman, lone holdout for acquittal of the gunman until the final vote was taken that unpleasant conditions and food in the jury room affected his verdict.

Ten of the jurors have given the newspaper assurance the verdict was fair and there was no doubt of Brothers' guilt.

Said Jacob M. Schlosser: "The only reason the electric chair was not considered for Brothers was the testimony of a defense witness that she saw the man who fired the gun and that it was not Brothers. There was no doubt that Brothers was at the scene of the slaying and was an accessory to the murder. He should have been given at least 25 years' imprisonment and Hagerman's stand was the reason he didn't get it. Hagerman's statement about food and conditions was ridiculous. I gained six pounds while on the jury."

Several jurors declared Hagerman refused to argue, sitting apart and gazing out the window.
